The College World Series

- Oregon State has made a habit of becoming visitors to Omaha, the site of the College World Series. The Beavers made three consecutive trips to Rosenblatt Stadium from 2005-2007 and have been to the College World Series four times after their inaugural trip in 1952.
- Oregon State became just the fifth team in NCAA history to win consecutive titles when winning championships in 2006 and 2007. The Beavers were the first team in a decade to accomplish the feat and the first from the Pac-10 in almost 20 years.
- Oregon State is just the fifth team currently in the Pac-10 to reach the College World Series in three consecutive seasons. The World Series will be celebrating its 53rd season in 2010.
- The Beavers became just the sixth Pac-10 club to win the World Series by sweeping its entire way through Omaha. Oregon State went 5-0 in 2007, and trailed just one inning throughout the team's play in Omaha.
- A total of 26,887 fans came out to watch Oregon State's title-clinching 11-4 win over North Carolina in 2007. That total is the single-largest crowd to watch a championship series game in College World Series history. That series' championship game drew 25,012, the largest final game ever at Rosenblatt Stadium.
- In Oregon State's two championship seasons, the Beavers had 11 players named to the College World Series All-Tournament Team. That tied a Pac-10 record for most players over a two-year span.

Coaching Success

- Current head coach Pat Casey is one of many of Oregon State's successful head coaches. Casey is in his 16th season as head coach of the Beavers and enters the season with 505 victories, which places him third in Oregon State history.
- Jack Riley, Casey's predecessor at Oregon State, holds the school's record with 613 victories over a 22-year span. He won five titles with the Beavers during his tenure and posted 274 victories in Pac-10 play for a .731 winning percentage.

- Ralph Coleman spent 35 seasons in the Oregon State dugout through three different coaching stints. Until Riley overtook him, Coleman was the program's leader with 561 victories, including 279 against Pac-10 clubs. He won 10 conference titles during his 35-year tenure. Coleman still holds the school's record for career winning percentage at .640.
- All three historical coaches for the Beavers are ranked in the top 20 in Pac-10 coaching history. Casey is 19th all-time in victories, while Coleman is 16th and Riley is 12th.
- After winning two straight titles, Casey was recognized nationally. In 2006 and 2007, he won National Coach of the Year honors by various organizations.
- Coaching success doesn't just rest upon Oregon State head coaches. Three former Oregon State assistant coaches were named head coaches at their respective universities in 2008. Dan Spencer took over head coaching duties at Texas Tech while Gary Henderson was named the head coach at Kentucky. Donny Harrell was named the head coach at Seattle, which will start play D-I play this season.
- Oregon State has three fine assistant coaches who will be in the dugout this season. Marty Lees enters his ninth year with the Beavers, now as associate head coach, and has made the Beavers into one of the nation's best defensive teams. Oregon State has finished in the top 20 nationally in fielding percentage in each of the past four seasons.
- Pat Bailey is in his third season as an Oregon State assistant and oversees the hitters. He has also tasted a national title after leading nearby George Fox to a Division III title in 2004.
- Pitching coach Nate Yeskie is in his second season with the Beavers. Oregon State's team ERA dropped nearly a run and a half in Yeskie's first season with OSU. He also mentored Sam Gaviglio to multiple Freshman All-America honors.

Beavers In The Draft

- Oregon State has seen a 30 players drafted over the past four seasons. In 2006, the Beavers had nine players chosen by Major League clubs, a single-year record.
- In 2007, Oregon State accomplished another first. Eddie Kunz and Mitch Canham were both selected in the first round, marking the first time two Beavers went in the draft's initial round in the same season.
- Under head coach Pat Casey, 22 players have been selected in the draft's top nine rounds. Of those 22 selections, 21 signed professional contracts and 12 are still playing with an affiliated organization.
- Six different Beavers have been selected in the first round of the draft, including Steve Lyons in 1981, Mike Thurman in 1994 and Jacoby Ellsbury in 2005. Lyons had a long Major League career, seeing time for four Major League organizations in nine seasons. Thurman played six seasons for Montreal and the New York Yankees and Ellsbury completed his first full MLB season in 2008.

Professional Beavers

- In 2009, four different former Oregon State players saw time with Major League clubs. Overall, the Beavers have had 21 players play at the game's highest level. And with 30 MLB selections the past four seasons, Oregon State is expecting to see more Major League debuts the next few seasons.
- Jacoby Ellsbury became Oregon State's first alum to win a World Series when he and the Boston Red Sox swept Colorado in 2007. Ellsbury, a rookie that season, batted .438 with four doubles and a stolen base in the series. Ellsbury recently set Boston's single-season stolen base record with 70 in 2009.
- Brian Barden was named the National League's Rookie of the Month for April last season.
- Barden became Oregon State's first Olympian in 2008 and helped guide Team USA to a bronze medal the Beijing Olympics. Barden had made his Major League debut with Arizona in 2007 and has also seen action with the St. Louis Cardinals in 2007 and 2008.

Jacoby Ellsbury became Oregon State's first World Series winner in 2007

- Ken Forsch is widely considered to be Oregon State's most successful professional player, seeing 16 seasons with the Houston Astros and California Angels from 1970 to 1986. In 1982, he won a career-high 13 games and finished with 114 for his career.

- Twenty-seven Beavers played for an affiliated organization in 2008.

All-Americans

- Oregon State has a proud history of having players recognized nationally with All-American honors. Nineteen different Beavers have earned All-American honors.

- Of those 19 players, four have earned All-American status in two different seasons. Those players are Jay Dean in 1954 and 1955, Cecil Ira in 1962 and 1963 and Dallas Buck and Jonah Nickerson in 2005 and 2006.

- Oregon State has seen a spike in All-Americans since Pat Casey took the helm in 1995. Under Casey, the Beavers have had nine All-Americans, most recently with Mitch Canham, who was named one by Collegiate Baseball in 2007.

Oregon State And Team USA

- Oregon State has begun a new tradition. Over the last five seasons, the Beavers have had their first Olympian and four other players who have been named to the Team USA National Team.

- In 2008, Brian Barden played in eight of Team USA's nine games in Beijing as the Red, White and Blue took home the bronze medal.

- In 2005, teammates Kevin Gunderson and Jonah Nickerson became the first Beavers to play for the USA National Team.

- Darwin Barney became the third Beaver to play for Team USA in 2006.

- In 2008, Kevin Rhoderick became the fourth Oregon State player to earn a spot on the national team.

Kevin Gunderson was an All-American in 2006

One Of The Nation's Finest Ballparks

- That can certainly be the title bestowed upon Goss Stadium at Coleman Field as the venerable facility underwent an expansion during the 2008 season.

- Oregon State has played on its home site since 1907, the program's first year. And in 2009, Goss Stadium was in its finest condition.

- The ballpark now has 2,798 permanent seats and capacity can reach nearly 3,300 when temporary outfield seating is installed.

- Oregon State played 22 home games in 2009 and set a program record in attendance, averaging 2,218 fans per game. That was a total of 48,805, which will be sure to jump in 2010 as OSU is scheduled to play 34 home games.

- The 34 home games will be a record number, surpassing the 31 games in 2005 and 2006, but which also included postseason contests.

- New features to the ballpark include the Omaha Room, a club level down the right field line, and a new player's lounge adjacent to the third base dugout. The Beavers also installed a Hall of Fame Room and Academic Room, both of which are located underneath the club level.

- Oregon State is one of just a few Pac-10 teams to have a videoboard and the Beavers were the first to install one, doing so in 2007.

On The Road

- Oregon State regularly plays to a big fan base wherever it travels. That was never more evident when Oregon State and Oregon set a Pacific-10 Conference record with a crowd of 15,540 during the Civil War at PGE Park last season. The third game of the series subsequently drew 13,709, for a total of 29,249 over the two games.

- Called the Papé Grand Slam, the series moves into its third year in 2010 when Oregon State hosts Tennessee for three games.

- Last year, away from Goss Stadium, the Beavers played in crowds that averaged 2,639.

Media Exposure

- Oregon State is one of the most media friendly teams in the nation and is regularly covered by a number of newspapers, television stations and radio stations.

- Oregon State has been the center of features by Baseball America, USA Today, Collegiate Baseball and many other national publications over the last few years.

- Oregon State regularly plays in front of television audiences on FSN Northwest and ESPN. The Beavers, through the Pac-10, are a popular team for FSN to broadcast on a national scale.

- The Beavers enjoy one of the best radio packages on the West Coast. Every game this season is scheduled to air live on the Beaver Sports Network and online on Beaver Nation Online. Select games are also broadcast on Spanish

The Pacific-10 Conference

- Oregon State calls the Pacific-10 Conference home and has so at various points since the 1916 season. The Beavers joined the conference for good in 1946.

- The Pac-10 is called the "Conference of Champions" for a reason. Arguably the nation's top collegiate baseball conference, it holds the national record with 26 national titles. That is 16 titles more than the second-place conference, the Big 12, which last won a title in 2005.

- At least one Pacific-10 Conference team has appeared in the national title game or series in six of the last 12 seasons.

- There have been 60 College World Series tournaments and Pac-10 clubs have finished first or second 40 times.

- At least one Pac-10 team has advanced to the College World Series in every season dating back to 1997.

- Pac-10 clubs have won 237 games all-time at the College World Series. The Pac-10 is the only conference to have won more than 170 games at the World Series.

- Six of the Pac-10's 10 current teams have won at least two national titles. USC leads the nation with 12, although the Trojans have not been national champions since the 1998 season.

GOSS STADIUM AT COLEMAN FIELD

One Of The Nation's Finest Ballparks

In 2010, Goss Stadium at Coleman Field went from being just a spectacular ballpark and to one with the biggest historical significance in the nation.

Goss, which has stood on the Oregon State campus since 1907, is now the oldest continuous ballpark in the nation. The Beavers have played at the site of Goss Stadium since the program began play more than 100 years ago.

The stadium itself has undergone numerous changes - including numerous renovations and expansions - but the playing field itself has stood in place since day one.

And just like day one, Goss, formerly known just as Coleman Field, has hosted games in front of one of the best fanbases in the nation.

In 2009, the Beavers played in a newly expanded Goss Stadium that brought capacity to nearly 3,300. And it paid off as a record average 2,218 fans saw the Beavers play 22 home games last season. That number will certainly jump in 2010 as OSU is scheduled to play a school-record 34 home games.

A project spearheaded by head coach Pat Casey expanded the stadium prior to the 2009 season gave the ballpark a facelift. Nearly 1,000 seats were added down the left and right field lines, enabling more Oregon State fans to witness one of the top programs in the nation.

The seating addition is far from the only change fans saw beginning last season. A stadium suite, called the Omaha Room, now looms over right field with seating for approximately 70. Modeled after the club level at football's Reser Stadium, it can also be used for team banquets and other various events.

Underneath the Omaha Room are two new rooms -- an academic room and a Hall of Fame room. The academic room and Hall of Fame area are utilized to celebrate the fine history at Oregon State and to allow its current student-athletes the chance to excel in the classroom.

Last, but certainly not least, is a new player's lounge located underneath the left field stands that gives Oregon State players the chance to relax before games and unwind afterwards.

The expansion completed a string of stadium upgrades as a video board located in right field was installed prior to the 2007 season. The board was the first of its kind in the Pacific-10 Conference and allows fans to watch replays and enjoy capabilities rivaled by Major League stadiums.

Attendance has spiked at the campus park. The Beavers saw an average of 1,899 per home game in 2008, including a mark of nearly 2,200 over the last 14 games of the season. In 2007, Oregon State fans went through the turnstiles at then-record rates. Oregon State averaged 2,005 fans per game at Goss in 2007, up from 1,642 in 2006 -- the Beavers' first NCAA title season. In 2005, the same season as OSU's first trip to Omaha since 1952, the Beavers averaged 1,484 fans.

In fact, in each of the three seasons Oregon State has hosted a regional or super regional, each game, totaling 13 in all, surpassed the 2,000 mark in attendance. Also, the Beavers saw crowds of 3,000 or better in six of those 13 games.

Oregon State rode that wave of support to an incredible home-field advantage. OSU went 17-5 at home last season and over the past four seasons, the Beavers are 101-26 (.795) at home, keeping in line with the team's all-time winning ways. In 101 years at what is now Goss Stadium -- and 99 seasons -- OSU is 1,021-439-1 at home, posting an impressive .699 winning percentage.

Goss Stadium at Coleman Field

Pat Casey, now in his 16th season at Oregon State, has utilized Goss Stadium, taking the fans' passions and his team's talents and turning them into wins. In 15 years, Casey's clubs have posted a 238-102 (.700) mark at home. In 2005, Oregon State set a program record with 26 home wins. A year later, the Beavers set the record again, finishing with 27 wins at venerable Goss Stadium.

Casey, just one of four coaches in the past 60 years at Oregon State, has seen two of the most significant stages of Goss Stadium. Previous to the 2009 expansion, in 1999, the park, then known just as Coleman Field, saw a major renovation. That renovation brought improved seating areas, a new press box and improved locker rooms and dugouts.

Nine years later, and with the completion of the new seating areas, Casey and Oregon State fans will have a ballpark he has strived for since coming to Corvallis prior to the 1995 season.

Over the past seven seasons, Goss Stadium has seen other improvements. In the spring of 2002, lights were added to the ballpark, making night games a possibility. And prior to the 2007 season, a new scoreboard with video replay capabilities went up in right-center field. During that same period, the Beavers got a new playing surface in the infield as FieldTurf was installed. The outfield remains natural grass.

The stadium's videoboard is the first of its kind in the Pacific-10 Confer-ing it easy for students to stop by a game between classes.

The field is named for former Oregon State player and coach Ralph Coleman, who guided the Beavers for 35 seasons from 1923-66. The stadium is named for John and Eline Goss, whose major lead gift to the $2.3-million fundraising effort made the project possible.

John Goss was an Oregon State track and field letterman in the 1930s. The naming of the stadium is also a memorial to his older brother, James Goss, an Oregon State graduate.

John and Eline Goss made additional contributions to OSU toward endowed scholarships for student/athletes and other top academic students, including graduates of Portland's Grant High and members of the Beta Theta Pi fraternity.

Over the 2005 and 2006 seasons, when Oregon State won back-to-back Pacific-10 championships, advanced to the College World Series and won the 2006 national title, the Beavers went 53-9 at home. In both those seasons, OSU won both the NCAA Regionals and Super Regionals in its own ballpark, giving national cable television audiences a look at the Beavers' diamond.

The park is symmetrical, measuring 330 feet down the foul lines, 365 to the power alleys and 400 to center. The fence is 14 feet high from left field to left-center, then eight feet high from left-center to right field.

Fans have the opportunity to watch replays, catch game highlights from past Oregon State victories and keep abreast of play in other conference games. As one of the few teams in the nation with a videoboard, the Beavers have the ability to provide a true gameday experience.

Goss Stadium at Coleman Field has an interesting history, to say the least.

When Oregon State began fielding a varsity baseball team in 1907, the school laid out a diamond on a lot just south of the main campus. A century later, that same site still serves as the home of the Beavers, making Goss Stadium at Coleman Field the oldest diamond in the Pacific-10 Conference and one of the oldest college fields in the country.

When Goss Stadium was added to Coleman Field in 1999, OSU owned not only one of the most historic home ballparks in the country but one of the finest, as well.

Over the past nine decades, the campus has grown around Goss Stadium at Coleman Field, making it one of the most picturesque settings in college baseball. The ballpark is a short walk down Waldo Place from the Memorial Union and OSU's central campus area, mak-

The concrete, steel and brick structure has a press box, a lobby/concession area, restrooms, locker rooms, dugouts and storage areas. The stadium was designed to complement the architecture of the surrounding campus, and to evoke the aura of baseball's historic parks.

The first game after the addition of Goss Stadium to Coleman Field was on March 12, 1999, when defending national champion Southern California topped the Beavers 5-2. The stadium was dedicated on April 17, 1999 as OSU beat California 11-5 before a crowd of 1,246 and a national cable television audience.

The ballpark saw its first night game on April 26, 2002, as the Beavers beat fourth-ranked Stanford 3-1. A set of lights meeting professional Class

Triple-A standards was installed that spring thanks to the generosity of longtime OSU boosters Bert and Shirley Babb.

Goss Stadium at Coleman Field has batting cages behind the left-field fence. When conditions call for indoor practice, the Beavers head for OSU's Truax Indoor Practice Facility, which opened in August, 2001.

The addition of Goss Stadium to Coleman Field ended years of speculation over whether the Beavers would be able to remain playing baseball at their longtime home.

3/17/99 vs. Portland

As Oregon State expanded, land near the center of campus became scarce and the school's master plan called for the site to eventually be turned over to academic uses.

In 1961, The Oregonian newspaper noted: "In the not-too-distant future, Oregon State baseball hopefuls won't have railroad tracks as a long-distance batting target. Coleman Field will eventually hold no basepaths, only buildings in this era of construction for higher education. Already one classroom building for this site is beyond the drawing board stage."

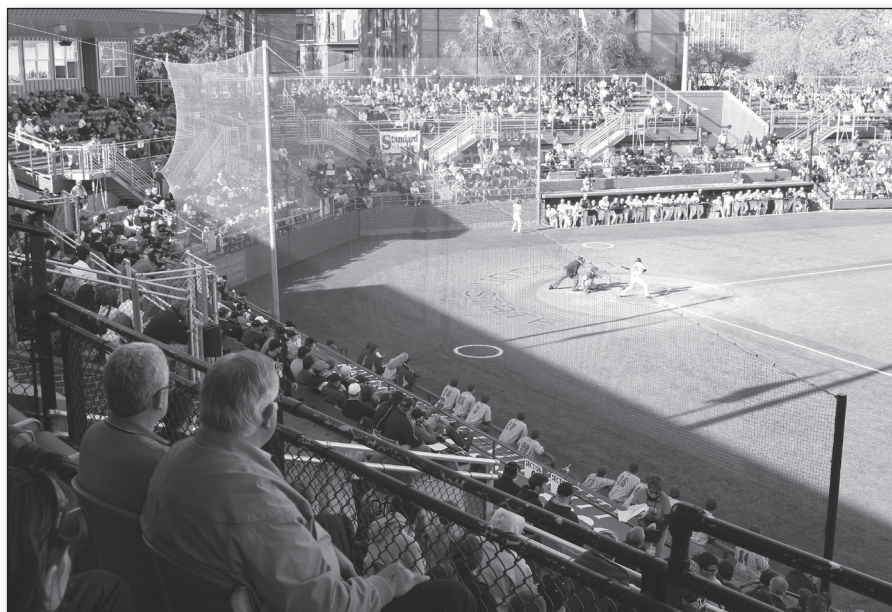

For over 30 years, that possibility prevented any major improvements to Coleman Field. Long-term plans for the OSU campus called for moving the baseball field southeast of the intersection of Western Boulevard and 26th Street.

In 1996, the baseball program explored building a press box and storage/concession building at Coleman Field. The possibility of building a stadium was also looked into, and that gradually became the goal of the baseball program and many Beaver boosters.

The generous donation from the Goss family was the key to a private fundraising effort in the late 1990s. The ballpark's name would be amended to Goss Stadium at Coleman Field in their honor in 1999.

With no buildings slated for the Coleman Field site in the next 20 years, objections to a stadium were overcome in early 1997. The OSU campus master plan was changed at that point, assuring that the Beavers will continue playing at Goss Stadium at Coleman Field well into the future.
